What is baby sign language?

Baby sign language is a way of communicating with your baby using gestures and signs. It is a great way to bridge the communication gap between you and your baby before they can talk. Baby sign language can be used to communicate a variety of things, including:

- Basic needs, such as hunger, thirst, and diaper changes

- Emotions, such as happy, sad, and tired
- Activities, such as eating, playing, and sleeping
- Objects, such as toys, food, and animals

Why use baby sign language?

There are many benefits to using baby sign language. Some of the benefits include:

- Improved communication: Baby sign language can help to improve communication between you and your baby. By using signs, your baby can express their needs and wants more clearly, which can reduce frustration for both of you.
- Earlier language development: Studies have shown that babies who are exposed to sign language develop language skills earlier than babies who are not. This is because sign language helps to develop the brain's language centers.
- Stronger bond: Signing with your baby can help to create a stronger bond between you. When you sign with your baby, you are showing them that you are interested in what they have to say and that you want to communicate with them.
